Roger Marks recently joined Guggenheim Commercial Real Estate Group as Senior Vice President. Roger's current assignments include leasing, tenant/landlord representation, multi-family, real estate market analysis, adaptive reuse and land acquisition.

Roger has been actively involved in the real estate industry for over 30 years from a variety of vantage points. He began his career as a leasing representative of regional shopping malls for the Richard E. Jacobs Group. He then joined Camelot Music where he was Vice President of Real Estate for 12 years and led a team of professionals that grew the company from 200 stores to over 500 units in 42 states and Puerto Rico until the company's successful sale to Transworld Entertainment. Upon the sale of Camelot, Roger founded and operated a leasing consulting company which represented shopping center developers, as well as retailers located in Ohio, Michigan, Illinois and Arkansas. In addition, he consulted for retailers and restaurants developing strong real estate strategies along with the implementation of expansion initiatives.

After successfully leasing one of the first middle market lifestyle centers in the United States, Roger joined the Dallas based MG Herring Company as Vice President Leasing. While affiliated with the Herring Group, Roger worked on the leasing of large lifestyle projects throughout the South.

Entrepreneurial in nature, Roger also created a specialty European Food concept that operated in one of the nation's premier shopping center venues, Easton Town Center in Columbus, Ohio. More recently, Roger has become highly knowledgeable in the service retail sector having been an owner and broker of retail self-service laundry facilities.
